ARCHBISHOP GROSS HAS PASSED AWAY

His Death Was Entirely Unexpected.

HIS CAREER AN INTERESTING ONE

Was Appointed a Bishop When Only 36 Years of Age—Under His Administration the Pacific Coast Has Made Great Strides.

PORTLAND, Nov. 14.—Archbishop William Hickley Gross, of the Oregon Roman Catholic church, died at St. Joseph's hospital, Baltimore, Md., this morning. His grace had been in ill health for some time, and during the first week of last September, he decided to visit his old home in Baltimore. Then he did not expect his ailments would terminate fatally. But almost a week ago he took to his bed, from which he never arose, passing into a tranquil, eternal sleep, from general debility. His death was an unexpected one, as up to within a few hours of his grace's demise he gave evidence of recuperation. The Catholic clergy of this city were startled upon receiving the mournful news, as they hoped for something better. On the late archbishop's personal request, he will be laid to rest in his native city Thursday, and there will be no time for any prelate from the Pacific coast to reach Baltimore for the funeral. On Thursday there will be a grand requiem mass (Corcoran Absent).

The Most Reverend William H. Gross, D. D., C. S. S. R., third archbishop of Oregon, was born in the city of Baltimore, Md., on June 12, 1837. The Gross family came originally from Alsace, and its American founder, Jacob Gross, and his son, John J. Gross, took part in the defense of Baltimore in 1812.

The archbishop received his early education at the parochial school, attached to St. Vincent's church, Baltimore. In this church he also made his first communion.

In 1857 he was invested with the religious habit and formally began his career as a Redemptorist novice. On April 3, 1858, he made his first vows, when his aim was centered upon becoming a perfect Redemptorist. In March, 1863, the deceased prelate was ordained a prelate at Annapolis, Md., by Archbishop Kenrick, of Baltimore.

He remained a part of the time as superior chaplain at Annapolis. His experiences during the civil war were of a trying order. He was almost incessantly in the hospital, the field of battle, the skirmish line or the lonely outpost.

When Archbishop Gross was promoted to the archiepiscopal see of Oregon in 1885, he could point to a splendid cathedral erected by his exertions among a people of scanty means, the number of priests increased to twenty-seven, churches and chapels to thirty, institutions and orphan asylums to fourteen. And all this was done in a Catholic population not exceeding 25,000. When Archbishop Seghers resigned in 1884, in order to devote his life more particularly to the Indian missions of the extreme Northwest the holy see selected Bishop Gross to succeed him. It was at his instance that the Benedictine Fathers at Mount Angel opened a college for the higher education of the young, which is advancing yearly in the number of its pupils and the efficiency of its training. Later on, at his request, a lesser and a greater seminary have been added, so that young Oregonians are now provided right at home with all the facilities needed for attaining the education, required by the church in candidates for the priesthood.

The Christian Brothers have also been introduced into Oregon to take charge of St. Michael's college and the parochial school attached to the cathedral. Academies for the education of young ladies have increased from eight to twenty. In addition to the religious orders of women already in the diocese, six additional orders have been introduced. In other works of charity his zeal has been no less manifested.

On the 26th, 27th and 28th of last April the silver jubilee of Archbishop Gross was celebrated here. On this occasion, which was the greatest church event in the history of Oregon, a beautiful residence was presented to him.

It's Human Nature.

This readiness to accept the wonderful and miraculous in preference to commonplace truth. A plausible and glib-tongued doctor can go from town to town curing, or trying to cure, people, and have a great influx of obeisants, while every community in which the so-called doctor goes is supplied with quiet, learned practitioners, who have forgotten more than the fakir ever learned, and they can give you the best treatment within the reach of human knowledge. While your home doctors carry you from year to year, get up at all times of the night and are your servants during the day, and you pay them when you are well or able, the fakir gets the cash, and is gone forever. If your eyes are troubling you in any way, call on Prof. P. G. Daut, the only graduated optician or doctor of refraction in The Dalles, two doors west of Keller's bakery. I am here to stay, and guarantee all eye work.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c. 6-10
